Two words decide who a permit halt reaches.

A connection to deny

The Governor's August 3rd letter says a project that fails to comply must be denied connection to the Texas grid. That audit covers data centers advancing through the interconnection queue.

Ninety percent of the new ones

ERCOT counts more than 474 gigawatts of requests to connect. The Governor puts data centers at about ninety percent of the new ones.

About forty, behind the meter

A gas compression company says it will supply one data center with 76 megawatts of behind-the-meter capacity from about 40 reciprocating gas engines.

Forty nine days, then twenty eight

The audit was ordered August 3rd. The directive came 49 days later. The agency answers to the Governor’s office 28 days after that.

AGENCY ANSWERS

Engines have a page of their own

The agency publishes an "Overview of air permitting requirements and options for new internal combustion engine operations." Nothing verified says whether these engines need an air permit.

A hearing with no date

The agency canceled the notice and comment hearing on data center permit O4791, captioned to Vantage Data Centers TX11. It says the hearing will be rescheduled for a later date. Separately, TCEQ answers to the Governor's office by October 19th.

NO DATE YET FOR THE HEARING.
